

HIGH HOPES FOR GOGOLDCOAST

GOLD Coast real estate identity Luke Henderson (right) and restaurateur Simon Gloftis still have high hopes for a Magic Millions yearling they bought last year, cheekily named GoGoldCoast. Mayor Tom Tate, part of the syndicate, dreamed up the name. Prowling the Bundall sales yards yesterday, Mr Henderson said the horse, being trained by Chris Waller, had a break but was getting back into track work. "I tell you what, I'd like to own a bar or restaurant around town right now," Mr Henderson said, pointing out the influx starting to arrive.
